She spoke especially along civic lines, suggesting what a club could do for the betterment of a town or city in which it is located. The piano selections by Madam Schillbach were greatly enjoyed. Madam Schillbach is an Austrian, and is well known in musical circles as a teacher of the piano.

—At the morning service of the Universalist church last Sunday, the pastor spoke of the strong desire upon the part of some members of the parish to erect a parish house in the rear of the church, to contain a hall with a good stage, a pleasant parlor and a study for the minister, and the rearrangement of the present vestry so as to provide a better kitchen and other facilities for work. Treadwell's orchestra will play for the dancing and other attractions will be two saxophones and a yuka-la-lee. The tickets are limited. Those who are planning to attend should not wait later than the fourteenth to obtain their tickets, for already a large number of the tickets to be sold are disposed of.

—Next Monday there will be an observance of Lincoln day in the public schools of Arlington, consisting of appropriate exercises by the pupils, supplemented as far as is possible by a brief address from some comrades of Post 36, G. The next meeting will be held on Saturday evening, Feb. 17, at 7 o'clock, at the home of Ralph Atwood, 30 Highland avenue.

—The funeral of Melotte A. Hobbs took place Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moore, 1077 Mass. avenue. The service was conducted by Rev. Frank L. Masseck, pastor of the First Universalist church of this town. The interment was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery. Mr. Hobbs was born in this town sixty-three years ago and for a number of years was in business here. He was the son of Jacob F. Hobbs, a former Selectman, who was prominent in local affairs up to the time of his death. His mother's maiden name was Harriet E. Frost.

Entrance was gained through a cellar window. John Swenson, the plumber at the Heights, had some tools taken from a house on the Summer street extension. J. M. Melkie, 17 Trowbridge street, discovered a man attempting to steal tools from the house at 80 Oxford street. A house at 17 Fairmont street, owned by James W. Connors, 11 Beach street, Cambridge, was broken into and saws and wall paper were stolen. Oils and paints were stolen from two houses on Summer street extension, which are —The postponed concert of the Arlington Heights Singers' club will occur next Monday evening, Feb. 12, in Crescent Hall. Some forty tickets have been sold in this section of the town for the concert.

—Miss Carolyn Brackett, of Addison street, who was seriously ill last week from a heart attack, is reported as improving. Miss Brackett was for a long period of years the music chairman of Arlington Woman's club, and many remember her work for the club in this capacity with pleasure. Miss Brackett has been somewhat of an invalid for the past year and friends have missed her from the life of the club and in the Unitarian church where she was a constant attendant.

—Thursday evening, in G. A. R. Hall, Post 36, Camp 46, W. R. C. and the Auxiliary, united in a joint celebration of Lincoln Day. Com. Henry Clark presided and introduced the several features, which included speeches, vocal music, instrumental selections (what there is left of Gideon's Band had a share) and social features as well. It was an interesting occasion, bringing together the boys who served when Lincoln was President and those who have been so helpful in recent years in helping them carry on the work on Memorial Day and other occasions.

—The East Arlington Branch of the Robbins' Library, will be opened next Thursday afternoon, Feb. 15, at 1.30, in the basement of the Crosby school house, on Winter street, where a room has been fitted for the purpose, with an entrance on the north side of the building. —Mr. Mark S. Dickey, who has been the substitute organist at the First Baptist church since early summer, gave an organ recital on the evening of Friday, Feb. 2nd, in the church. The icy condition of the sidewalks, coupled with the intense cold, tended to lessen the attendance, although there was a goodly number. Mr. Dickey's friends in the church, as well as musical people. The recital was only an hour in length and the program was of such a character that it could be enjoyed by all. For the most part the selections were of the tuneful nature that pleases the average audience and were selected with a good deal of musical discernment. The group by MacDowell and Shackley were lovely, as they brought out the singing tone of the organ. In the Steuberbach number the ready tones of the instrument were prominent.

What Women Like to Know

A convertible stitched brim hat of the same material as the raincoat completes the design. Suitable for misses from five to seventeen years.

Care of Fine Furniture And Interior Woodwork

Several times a year all the interior woodwork and furniture should be rubbed with a soft cloth moistened with yellow paraffin oil, costing about 15 cents a pint. The finish is greatly improved by this treatment, and the wood will last much longer in perfect condition. This paraffin oil is also an excellent cleanser and will remove the dust and grease deposit found on woods cleaned with a dry dust cloth.

A great many people clean white woodwork with strong soap or the various cleaning powders. The woodwork will be clean, but it will soon wear off or become dry and faded. A thin paste of powdered whiting is by far the best cleaner for all painted wood, furniture and enamel beds. The whiting is mixed with water to make a thin paste about the consistency of cream. This is rubbed over a small surface of the white woodwork until it becomes clean; the surplus whiting is rubbed off, and no rinsing is required.

Many a housekeeper has grieved over a highly finished table or stand which is ruined by white spots caused by water from flower pots or bowls. These white spots may be readily removed by a little careful treatment. Wet a soft cheesecloth with wood or denatured alcohol and lightly sponge the spot. When the white disappears pour enough of the yellow paraffin oil over the spot to cover and allow to stand several hours; wipe off the surplus oil and polish with thoroughly dry.

Remember, then, that finished woods require cleaning, but they are ruined by strong soaps and washing powders and should be carefully handled with an intelligent understanding of their composition.

Women Start Most Fires.

In handling kerosene, benzine, gasoline, etc., great care should be taken. A majority of all fires aside from those due to lightning, dynamite and firebugs are started by women. This may sound strange, but it is a fact. It is due to the reckless way in which women handle gasoline, which they use for every conceivable household purpose from cleaning gloves to slaying vermin. The vapor given off by gasoline is highly inflammable, and when it is mixed with the proper quantity of air it becomes a terrible explosive. Yet women will eagerly rinse their gloves in an open bowl of gasoline with the kitchen range burning merrily five feet away. It would be safer to play football with dynamite.

OLD AGE.

If you would insure a peaceful old age be careful of the acts of each day of your youth, for with youth the deeds thereof are not to be left behind.—Isaac Disraeli.

When a noble life has prepared old age it is not the decline that recalls, but the first days of immortality.—Mme. de Staël.

Before old age it was my chief care to live well; in old age it is to die well.—Seneca.

Is God Your Friend? Then Visit His Home. Go to Church.

WATCH the long line of people entering church on Sunday. Isn't it a fact that they are really the worth while people in the community? If you are a business man, don't you prefer dealing with a man who is a CONSISTENT CHURCHGOER rather than with a man who never goes to church? You wouldn't hesitate to INVITE ANY AND ALL OF THESE PEOPLE entering church to your home.

A MAN WHO GOES TO CHURCH CANNOT GO WRONG VERY LONG. A COMMON EXPRESSION IS THAT SOME PEOPLE GO TO CHURCH TO KEEP UP APPEARANCES. THAT MAY BE TRUE. BUT THE FACT THAT A MAN WANTS THE COMMUNITY IN WHICH HE LIVES TO THINK THAT HE IS GOOD AND GOD FEARING SHOWS THAT HE WANTS TO BE GOOD. HE WANTS TO ENJOY THE RESPECT OF HIS FELLOWS. WHILE THERE MAY BE SOME HYPOCRITES IN THE CHURCH, IT IS NO EXAGGERATION TO STATE THAT THE GREAT MAJORITY OF CHURCHGOERS ARE HONEST, UPRIGHT CITIZENS.

There is something basically wrong with a man who, while professing a belief in a Supreme Being, fails to take the opportunity the church affords to WORSHIP THAT SUPREME BEING. If you have a dear friend and you pass his house every day without dropping in to see him, you would not blame that man for DOUBTING THE SINCERITY of your friendship.

Do you wish God to DOUBT YOUR FRIENDSHIP? Do you want to LOSE HIM AS A FRIEND? If you don't, drop into his house AT LEAST ONCE A WEEK.

Show that you are sincere in your belief in God by GOING TO CHURCH next Sunday.

THEN GO TO CHURCH EVERY SUNDAY.

A Tribute To Lincoln

NO more significant memorial could have been presented to the nation than this. It suggests so many of the things that we prize most highly in our life and in our system of government. How eloquent this little house within this shrine is of the vigor of democracy! There is nowhere in the land any home so remote, so humble, that it may not contain the power of mind and heart and conscience to which nations yield and history submits its processes. Nature pays no tribute to aristocracy, subscribes to no creed of caste, renders fealty to no monarch or master of any name or kind. Genius is no snob. It does not run after titles or seek by preference the high circles of society. It affects humble company as well as great. It pays no special tribute to universities or learned societies or conventional standards of greatness, but serenely chooses its own comrades, its own haunts, its own cradle even and its own life of adventure and of training. Here is proof of it. This little hut was the cradle of one of the great sons of men, a man of singular, delightful, vital genius who presently emerged upon the great stage of the nation's history, gaunt, shy, ungainly, but dominant and majestic, a natural ruler of men, himself inevitably the central figure of the great plot. No man can explain this, but every man can see how it demonstrates the vigor of democracy, where every door is open, in every hamlet and countryside, in city and wilderness alike, for the ruler to emerge when he will and claim his leadership in the free life.—President Wilson in Address at Lincoln's Birthplace.

Lincoln's Christmas

His Son Tad Lightened One Holiday by Self Sacrifice

boys in blue, officers' messengers, mothers and wives pleading for their own in battle or hospitals passed through the White House early and late.

The death of Willie Lincoln before the second Christmas in Washington was a bitter sorrow. In 1863 Mr. Colfax said to the president: "Mr. Lincoln, you are worn out. I'm going to my old home for Christmas. Go with me. Bring Tad and take a rest of a day or so."

Mr. Lincoln shook his head and said: "No, Mr. Colfax, I can't take holidays. I've said before to you that I would gladly change places with the soldiers who sleep on the ground today."

Tad was wild that Christmas. Robert had gone off on his pony for the day. His mother was busy with friends from Illinois. Parcels, bundles and boxes were coming by express to "Tad Lincoln." Firms in the east and west and Washington houses were sending their handsomest books and finest games to "President Lincoln's Tad."

Now, Tad, with his father, had visited the camps across the river only a few days before. They had found "the soldier boys" suffering from poor shelter, severe cold and much sickness.

Quite late that Christmas night as Mr. Lincoln sat alone at his table, piled with maps, weary, sad eyed and troubled, Tad rushed in with his arms full of books. Climbing to his father's knee, putting his small arms around his father's neck, he exclaimed excitedly:

"Father, I want to send these beautiful books over to the camp. Don't you remember how lonesome and homesick the soldier boys looked that day? You see, they have no pictures, no turkeys nor pies nor a father, like me, for Christmas."

Mr. Lincoln held the little face close to his own a minute. "Yes, my son. Send a big box. It isn't too late. Ask mother for a lot of warm stuff, and tell Daniel to put in all the good things he can, and let him mark the box 'From Tad Lincoln.'"

Lincoln Knew History. "Charles I." said Alexander H. Stephens to Lincoln at the Hampton Roads conference, "was not above treating with the rebels." "All I know about Charles I.," replied Lincoln, "is that he lost his head."

Uncle Sam Takes a Hand.

On February 8d the indignation of a great nation over events, several of which would have aroused any other people to at least a defensive attitude, flamed forth in an act of President Wilson that has met with almost universal approval—the recall of the American representatives in Germany and the handing of passports to the German Ambassador. This action was due to the repudiation on the part of Germany of the pledges made a long time ago (they have not been kept in the meantime) and announcement that hereafter every vessel coming within a described zone would be destroyed if possible.

The only justification offered by Germany is that the Allies have not been held to strict accountability for violation of accepted laws regarding neutrals. The Germans may not distinguish the difference between sharp practices on the part of the Allies on purely business lines and the savage murder of women and children, to say nothing of hundreds of men sent to death as was the case with the Lusitania; but people in this country put human life in a class by itself and repeated dastardly acts of this kind resulting in the death of more than two hundred Americans alone, have occasioned a sentiment close to hating those responsible for these acts. The feeling has been intensified because while "regretting the event" in a formal note to Washington, it is common knowledge that officers in command of under-sea craft have been honored by the German government and promoted because of these dastardly acts.

And there are other cases that have tended to intensify the feeling aroused by what transpired in Belgium and also the ruthlessness shown in portions of France, before piracy on the sea was started. No one has heard of any official disfavor shown toward Capt. Papen since he was shipped to Germany because of unlawful acts here. There has been no word of condemnation of Capt. Boy-Ed in regard to his nefarious schemes in the United States. It is claimed he was awarded praise and an advanced position in the diplomatic service. The German attitude seems to be to applaud the unscrupulous, to regard as cowards those who would respect law and usage.

The history of the past two years would seem to bear out the statement that on the part of Germany no sort of exercise of military power could be too ruthless, no form of deceit too mean and low, no betrayal of trust too infamous, if perchance by it some gain along the object aimed at could be accomplished. All these things have been stored in the memories of the people of this country. They have been suffered with a patience surprising to the world. But this nation hates war, it would bear and forbear, but at length this has ceased to be a virtue, and a crowning act of infamy has united a great nation as partners with those against whom none of the things we have named have been charged even though in the strenuous place they have found themselves they may (they doubtless have) not safeguarded the rights, to say nothing of the interests, of neutral nations. As the nation stood by Cleveland when he met a menace; as it stood as a unit behind McKinley when needs be he must defend the nation's honor, so today the people stand behind and honor President Wilson for the step he has taken and for this we are glad. As Prof. Hocking of Harvard says, "it puts an end to a state of almost intolerable doubt. Was our government capable of following the word with the deed? Was it awake to its responsibilities in international affairs? Had it convictions? Was it willing to leave to others the entire burden of upholding them? Would the hope of an early peace obscure the demand for a just peace? These doubts are settled. Our neutrality does not bind us to indifference to every human issue."

On Monday Gov. McCall issued the usual proclamation, calling on the people of this Commonwealth to make some special observance of Feb'y 12, the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. For a long time there has been an effort to make this date a legal holiday, as it is in not a few states of the Union, but the Legislature has failed to approve, as it again did this year. The argument has been that one holiday in this short month is all business should be taxed with. We agree with this and we also believe that the quiet, thoughtful observance of the day in recent years and the visits of G. A. R. comrades to public schools have constituted a more fitting recognition of the service rendered to his country by the Martyr President than any other that could be named. In his proclamation Gov. McCall says:—

"I recommend that the scholars in our schools and our people in every walk of life devote the coming birthday of Lincoln to the study of what he said and what he did. The strength and simplicity of his spoken words will educate us in the use of our own language, and the contemplation of his deeds will be a new inspiration in the direction of good citizenship and help us to reflect in our lives the ideals of democracy. Let it be the aim of each one of us so to act that, to use the immortal words of the Gettysburg speech, 'this Nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.'"

The motive behind the successful move for a Constitutional Convention in this state crops out in the Legislature. A bill to compel candidates for places in the convention to announce their views on measures certain to be presented is now under consideration. It is not important that such a pledge could have no legal force. It is important that a small but well organized minority proposes in this way seek to obtain an advantage for their schemes. If any body of men should be left free to form judgment without hindrance and after full and free discussion, that body is a convention to revise a constitution binding on the people as a whole. Any effort to influence delegates and secure pledges in advance is contrary to the spirit of our form of government. The Legislature went to the limit to providing for the convention and decreeing that unpartisanism should be the rule in choice of delegates.

Representative Bitzer is the only member of the Mass. Legislature that was born in Germany; but there is not one more truly American. In an interview published on Wednesday he said:—

"While we Americans of German parentage naturally sympathize with Germany in her troubles, at a time like this we are truly loyal to America. And you can't make that too strong."

Every intimate acquaintance with "Jake" knows this sentiment dates back to his boyhood.

Serious defects in the new income tax law which threaten to lessen greatly the amounts available for the schools all over the state, and which will reduce the borrowing capacity of the cities and towns of the Commonwealth, have been discovered by the tax officials at the State House. These defects affect all of the fire and watch districts and many of the water districts and unless remedied will work hardships on a large number of persons in the Commonwealth.

For twenty five years and more Congress has been striving to secure the restriction of immigration from foreign countries. Repeatedly a bill has been passed, only to meet the veto of the then President,—first Cleveland, then Taft, then Wilson. The latter vetoed a bill passed by the present Congress three years ago and again this year, but on Feb. 2 it was passed over his veto 286 to 106 in the House. On Monday it was passed over the veto in the Senate 82 to 19.

The destruction of ocean going craft during the past two years has been something frightful, but carefully gathered statistics prove that the building of new vessels has more than kept pace; in fact the total tonnage afloat was 380,300 greater on Feb'y 1st than two and a half years ago.

Income Tax Explained.

A public meeting was held in Arlington Town Hall, last Tuesday evening, under the auspices of Arlington Board of Trade, for the purpose of explaining the new income tax. President James M. Mead was pleased to see so large an audience and in his welcoming speech, told of the aims of the Board of Trade. Although not yet a year old they are making plans for their new home. Before the end of the year the membership should be one thousand. Any resident of Arlington over twenty-one, who is of good character, is entitled to membership even if he is not doing business in Arlington, or any man doing business in this town, but who is not a resident here, is also eligible. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Joseph E. Perry, Income Tax Assessor for this district.

Mr. Perry first outlined the history of the laws of taxation, then went on to explain the new tax, and at the end of the talk answered questions regarding the law that were not understood. Many curious and humorous questions were asked from the floor, all of which were answered good-naturedly by Mr. Perry. The money derived from this tax on intangibles will, after expenses have been deducted, be returned to the cities and towns in proportion to their share in the State Tax. Everyone having a gross income from all sources for the year 1916 exceeding two thousand dollars, must make a tax return, although he may not have anything that is taxable. One point made clear was that any income from bonds and stocks is taxable at the rate of six per cent. This applies even if one's income is less than two thousand dollars. Any one whose total income from all sources does not exceed six hundred dollars, even if derived entirely from taxes, may claim exemption from three hundred dollars. Interest from money in Mass. savings banks, from U. S. bonds and state and municipal stocks, is not taxable. The three telephone companies' stocks are not taxable. There are many other exemptions allowed, such as business expenses, and if one is married and has his children and his own parents to support, he may claim a deduction not exceeding one thousand dollars from the amount on which he is taxable. Mr. Perry's office is in the Harvard Bazaar Building, Central Square, Cambridge, and any further information may be had there.

Surgical Dressings Work.

The following letter has been received by Miss Ida F. Robbins, chairman of the Arlington Branch of the Surgical Dressings Work, from the executive committee at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital:—

DEAR MADAM:—In the present crisis the executive committee is in communication with the authorities in Washington and elsewhere, and as soon as it is advisable to change the direction of your work in any particular, you will be informed. In the meantime, we beg you to continue your much needed work for the Allies, which probably could be utilized for our own country in time of need.

For the Committee.

KATHARINE R. MEAD, Chairman.

It is well to remind the town, at this time, that the Surgical Dressings Work here was started by the Preparedness League, which last summer was instrumental in assisting the Arlington boys to go to Plattsburg.

The Preparedness League, through its Surgical Dressings Committee, is ready at any time to answer the need of our country along the lines in which it has been working for the last nine months. Please give of your work or your money or both if you can. Any contribution, no matter how small, will be gratefully received by the treasurer, Mrs. Otis R. Whittemore, 8 Brantwood road.

The meetings for work are held every Tuesday, morning and afternoon, at the Unitarian vestry, the entrance to which is in the rear of the church. As we may have to fight for the freedom of the seas, let us, in the meantime, do what we can for those who are fighting for the freedom of their countries.

Realization of Pan-America at last in a near future of troublous times is forecast by a Brazilian newspaper of Rio Janeiro. Together with the press of all South America this paper supports the United States in its reply to the German announcement of unrestricted naval warfare. for the church. Small tables were placed about the room and prettily set with candles with different colored shades and bon-bon dishes. There was a main table from which the tea was served, presided over by Miss Haskell and Mrs. Martin. The table decorations on this were pink and white carnations. Some sixty ladies occupied the small tables and enjoyed the musical program, which included soprano solos by Mrs. Edwin P. Gaffney; violin numbers by Mrs. Charles Ambrose, (formerly Miss Rebecca Warren); readings by Mrs. Clarence Coolidge; piano selections by Miss Jeanette North. Mrs. Edwin Shirley was the accompanist. It proved a pleasant afternoon and netted a satisfactory sum.

The team work of the classes counted for points in the journey and were given for the largest collection and largest number of scholars taken into the school during the period of the imaginary journey. Miss Clara White's class of girls won the contest and were given the place of honor at the supper table and other recognitions were taken of their work in behalf of the school. Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

The First Parish (Unitarian) church of Arlington observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of its minister, Rev. Frederic Gill, Sunday and Tuesday of this week. On Sunday morning the minister preached to an audience that filled the greater portion of the church auditorium, the audience being chiefly made up of members of the church and parish. In view of the minister's expressed wish, there was no elaborate celebration of the anniversary, other than special music at the morning service and on Tuesday evening an informal reception.

The quartette of the church is made up of Mrs. Alice King Leavitt soprano, Miss Hattie Holmes, alto, Thomas R. White, tenor and Edward A. Osgood, bass and director, with Miss Hattie Snow organist. On Sunday it was assisted by Miss Olive Ripley Doe violinist, and rendered the following numbers:—

Voluntary, Triumphal March, Beethoven; anthems, Sing unto the Lord, Hahn, and The Word of God Incarnate, Scott; offertory, soprano solo, Rejoice greatly, Handel; response, violin solo; postlude, Gloria from Twelfth Mass, Mozart.

The Primary department of the Sunday school was, as is its usual custom, present at the opening exercises and Mr. Gill gave a brief talk to the department. The morning lesson was found in Luke fourth and in the second Epistle of Peter, first chapter. The subject of the sermon was "Glance backward but looking forward."

In opening Mr. Gill said he would divide his sermon into three topics "The Minister," "The Institution" and "The Message." Mr. Gill spoke briefly on the first point, quoting at some length from an early diary of his, in which he had jotted down the "Don't" he should endeavor to observe in his ministerial work. He spoke of his great love for his chosen calling and said he counted it a privilege to be the minister of this old historic church. He deplored the attitude of some men who having become dissatisfied with the church institution and having gone out of it, have proceeded to speak disparagingly of it. A minister has a great opportunity to shape the lives of many and if he fails it is a reflection on his own ability. In speaking of "The Message," Mr. Gill said that the church has stood for the best. It now has a greater opportunity than ever before in proclaiming its faith and living up to it. It is pleasant to take a retrospective view, but the chief aim should be in the prospective, forgetting the things that are behind, press forward to the mark of the high calling. We must make the present better than the past. Mr. Gill spoke of three things he would like to see accomplished in his church. First that suitable tablets be placed in the church, giving a brief history of the parish. The Sunday school is at present setting aside a part of its contributions each week toward a fund to carry out that suggestion. The second, that the American flag and the flag of the Commonwealth be displayed in the church at all times; third, that an apparatus for the showing of beautiful pictures on the screen, become a part of the working apparatus of the church.

The services closed with the singing of America, in view of the recent developments in international affairs. During the service the words to a hymn written by the Rev. H. H. Barbour, professor in the Meadville Theological school, for the ordination service Feb. fourth, 1892, was sung to "Old Hundred."

The following data regarding Mr. Gill and the church and parish he serves will be of interest in this connection:—

The church and parish was organized and a small building for their use erected in 1734, but no regular minister was employed until Rev. Samuel Cook was called in 1739. Mr. Cook died in 1783. Four years later Rev. Thaddeus Fiske became minister, and his pastorate was so successful that a new building was erected. Here he officiated until 1829, when he resigned because the parish chose Rev. Frederic H. Hedge, a leader in the liberal Unitarian movement then making rapid advance. The building in which services were held was destroyed by fire in 1856, and the present building was erected a considerable distance in the rear of the one burned. This event occurred during the pastorate of Rev. Samuel A. Smith, whose services during the war of the rebellion endeared him to the town as a whole. The following is a list of the ministers of old First Parish, in the order of terms:—

Samuel Cook 1739-1783; Thaddeus Fiske 1783-1829; Frederic H. Hedge 1829-1835; David Damon 1835-1843; William Ware 1843-45; James F. Brown 1845-1853; Samuel A. Smith 1854-1865; Charles C. Salter 1866-69; George W. Cutter 1870-1877; William J. Parrot 1878-1881; John P. Fobes 1882-87; Augustus M. Lord 1887-1890; Frederic Gill 1892.

The Arlington parish is the only settlement Mr. Gill has had. During his ministry a new order of service was adopted in 1883, and a new hymn book two years ago; the Sunday school has been thoroughly organized for the first time in its history, the Women's Alliance and the Social Circle have been united in the Social Alliance, and the Unity Club, an organization of the young people, has been formed. In 1890 a new covenant was adopted and has led to a great deepening of interest in church membership. Two series of addresses by representatives of other denominations upon the principles of those bodies have been given, in 1894 and 1908, and organ vespers during the winter have been instituted. The church building was extensively extended and remodelled in 1911.

Mr. Gill was born in Kingston, Ont., April 17, 1862. His father, Robert Gill, died in 1868, and Mr. Gill left school at twelve, working first as a telegraph messenger boy and later spending seven years in piano manufacturing. He graduated from the Meadville, Pa., Theological school in 1890 and then studied at the Harvard Divinity school. Besides contributing to the denominational periodicals he has written for the New World and the Harvard Theological Review, had a course of lectures at the Pacific Unitarian school for the ministry in 1909, and lately served as president of the Ministerial Union for two years. He married, in 1902, Miss Ruth Pierson, daughter of Rev. William H. Pierson of Somerville.

Mr. Gill is a student and a deep thinker, devoting much of his time to reading along educational lines. His home is filled with choice books, he having an unusually large library of rare editions. Mr. Gill has confined his work in the town to his church and parish, giving to it his conscientious and sincere work and has endeavored himself to his people in an unusual degree.

The informal reception was planned for Monday evening, but the snow storm of the day made it advisable to postpone the affair until the following evening. It lost none of its interest in the postponement and the vestries were filled with church friends and residents of the town, besides the clergymen and their wives, representing the other denominations in the town. Mr. Gill received informally and during the evening an orchestra composed of Miss Olive E. Doe violin, Miss Dorothy D. Doe cello, Mr. Verne Q. Powell flute and Miss Florence Lunnell pianist, played selections. The platform was arranged with palms and in the ladies' parlor was served refreshments of cream and ices by Caterer N. J. Hardy, from handsomely appointed tables. During the evening Mr. H. Augustus Phinney, who was the chairman of the observance, presented Mr. Gill with a check of $1000, a gift from individuals in the parish and as an expression of love and deep esteem in which Mr. Gill is held by his church people. Mr. Gill responded feelingly to this generous gift. There was also a souvenir book, which contained the signatures of all present at the reception. During the day flowers had been sent to Mrs. Gill. Letters were read from friends unable to attend, one of the pleasantest coming from Rev. Mr. Lord, former minister, now of Providence. A happy announcement made at this time was that through the efforts of Mrs. Henry W. Hayes, money had been raised to purchase the United States flag and one of the Commonwealth and that on Sunday the American flag would be in place in the church auditorium. One notable fact in the pastorate of Mr. Gill is that he has been absent but two Sundays during the whole twenty-five years, by reason of illness. The committee who had been in charge of this happy occasion was H. Augustus Phinney, James P. Parmenter, Frank W. Hodgdon, George A. Smith, Edward S. Fessenden, Herman F. Bucknam, (who was the secretary and treasurer), Miss Ida F. Robbins, Miss Ellen W. Hodgdon, Mrs. O. W. Whittemore, Mrs. Charles A. Hardy.

Theatre Notes.

Coming direct from her New York run, Julia Arthur will begin a brief engagement at the Hollis St. Theatre, Boston, in the greatest success of her career, "Sere-monda," produced under the personal direction of Miss Arthur, who supervised every detail of the production. "Sere-monda" was written by William Lindsey, a literature of Boston, who in the construction employed the classic method and beautiful flowing dialogue. It is a story of Old France in the romantic 12th century, that period often called the Troubadour Days, the time of the second Crusades. The company that supports Miss Arthur is a very large one, its members including Alphonse Ethier, Ivy Troutman, Brigham Royce, Katherine De Barry, Mary L. Malloy, Robert Gotschalk, Robert W. Frazer and more than thirty others. During the engagement the matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays, with an extra matinee on Washington's Birthday.

Minister From Servia First to Be Sent Here

The newly appointed Servian minister to the United States, Ljubomir M. Mihailovitch, who recently arrived in this country, is the first man to represent his government at Washington. Heretofore Servia's only diplomatic officer here was M. I. Pupin, who held the title of honorary consul general at New York.

Minister Mihailovitch does not speak English. In the course of an interview he said he had passed most of his time on the way here studying an English grammar and felt encouraged by the progress he had made. He speaks French fluently.

The new minister is forty-five years old. He was graduated from the University of Belgrade, where he studied law. His education was finished in Paris. For the last eighteen years he has been in the diplomatic service, for the most part in the provinces inhabited by Servians formerly under the Turkish government. At the beginning of the war he was at Rome as charge d'affaires. Later he was sent as minister to Montenegro. He removed to France when the Servian capital was removed from Belgrade.

Mother's Doll Story

Fluffy and Rex

Once there was a little boy whose name was Kay. He had two beautiful rag dogs, Fluffy and Rex, who loved to play with him in his big yard.

Every morning Kay played soldier, and Fluffy and Rex would jump around him and bark joyfully and leap up on him.

Kay had a great many soldiers, and some he would line up and drill till they could march as one man. Others he taught to dig trenches, and still more Kay taught to shoot straight.

All the time he was playing soldier Fluffy and Rex would frisk and bark. One winter day a "norther" came up. This means that the wind blows suddenly and the sunshine is spoiled by the cold. In fact, it was so very cold that the two rag dogs jumped right down into the trench to keep warm.

When Kay got back to his tent—for he had a fine tent in his big yard—he whistled and called for his pets. But the wind blew so hard they did not hear him.

Then Jack Frost snowed down in the trench, and poor Fluffy and Rex were all covered up with great white flakes, so that Kay, hunting for them, could not even see them. They had to stay outdoors in their cold snow bed all night, but when the morning sun thawed off their cover Kay found them and brought them back to his tent to get all warm and happy again.

Boy Scout Work in Japan.

Boy scouts were not actually organized in Osaka until 1914, but interest has grown rapidly during these two years. Scout activities are much the same as elsewhere, with such adaptation as is necessary to make them fit Japanese conditions. The oath and the twelve points of the scout law have been taken from the American and English handbooks, but revised and Japanese. Special suits, knapsacks and other supplies have been carefully worked out from the point of view of Japanese needs. The uniform is, of course, of the European style, because the kimono is unsuitable for active life.—Chicago News.

A Watch Game.

Place a watch upon a table, then pass paper and pencil to all and have them write down parts of the watch that will complete the following: 1. Something used before. 2. What a cry-baby makes. 3. The support of a flower. 4. A season. 5. What a lawyer strives to win. 6. Dealt with in arithmetic. 7. You have a pair of them. 8. Revolving portions of machinery. 9. Clear, transparent. 10. Adornments. Answers: 1. Second hand. 2. Face. 3. Stem. 4. Spring. 5. Case. 6. Figures. 7. Hands. 8. Wheels. 9. Crystal. 10. Sewels.

Labor Cheerfully.

Who art thou that complainest of thy life of toil? Complain not. Look up, my wearied brother. See thy fellow workmen there in God's eternity, surviving there, they alone surviving, sacred band of the immortals, celestial bodyguard of the empire of mankind. To thee heaven, though severe, is not unkind. Heaven is kind, as a noble mother, as that Spartan mother saying while she gave her son his shield, "Return with it, my son, or upon it."—Thomas Carlyle.

Learn to Save

It is a certain and sure fact that not every one in this world can be rich. Neither does every one want to be rich, but every man can, if he will, form such a habit of thrift that when trouble overtakes him, as it must overtake all, he will be able to ward off much of its unpleasantness.

It is a truth that goes without dispute that many of the bitter things that come to us along with our troubles are caused by the knowledge of the truth that had it not been for extravagance in the past the trouble of today would have been of less moment and more easy to bear.

It's a good thing for a man to have friends upon whom he can depend in moments of adversity—"A friend in need is a friend indeed"—but the best friend that a young man can have when the storm strikes his life is a bank account that has grown from small to larger amounts, saved from his salary by the habit of thrift that he has formed.—Exchange.

The Work That Pays.

Lord Kelvin, the famous Scotch scientist, used to tell the students in the Glasgow university that the thing that made him make up his mind to get an education at all costs and to work with his head and not with his hands was a remark made by a Scotch minister. "In Scotland," he said, "you can get all the labor you want for half a crown a day, but there is no country in the world where you can hire mind for half a sovereign a day, and some of it costs £100 an hour."

Find the Joys.

Many think themselves to be truly, God fearing when they call this world a valley of tears. But I believe they would be more so if they called it a happy valley. God is more pleased with those who think everything right in the world than with those who think nothing right. With so many thousand joys is it not black ingratitude to call the world a place of sorrow and torment?—Richter.

FACING TROUBLE.

- Should life's storms be blowing gusty or the road be hot and dusty
- Don't give up and pull a face all glum and blue.
- Cheer up, man, and tackle trouble!
- If your efforts you redouble
- There'll be brighter days ahead awaiting you.
- Where's the use of whining, moaning or of wasting time in droning?
- Never yet have such things pulled a fellow through.
- When you're trouble you must meet it. That's the proper way to treat it.
- Always bear in mind "results" depend on "you."
- If you mean to conquer trouble you must take it "at the double."
- You must act the man and face the matter out.
- Tackle trouble, gamely fight it.
- Shirking it will never right it.
- Face it bravely and your trouble you will rout.

Home Cookery

Pan Steak.

Get thick round steak and cut in pieces suitable for serving. Lay the pieces in a granite pan, season with salt, pepper and butter. Slice four large onions over it. Add one quart of canned tomatoes and season. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs and dot with butter. Bake forty-five minutes in a hot oven. Serve in the baking pan. This is good with or without potatoes.

Warm Potato Salad.

Slice boiled potatoes thin, sprinkle with pepper and very finely chopped onion. Put fryings of smoked ham or diced bacon into frying pan. When hot add one-half cupful of vinegar and a teaspoonful of sugar. Pour this over the potatoes and let them stand on the back of the stove in a dish of hot water for half an hour. Serve with country sausage.

New England Brown Bread.

One cupful of yellow Indian cornmeal, one-half cupful of rye meal, one-half cupful of flour, one cupful of milk, one-half cupful of molasses, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix ingredients well together, pour into greased brown bread mold, steam four hours and dry off ten minutes in moderate oven.

Fruit Salad With Dressing.

Remove the contents of half a grapefruit to an earthen dish, add two oranges pared and cut in small sections, with the stringy white portion removed. Dice three apples and cut enough celery in small pieces to make a half cupful. Stir all together with one-half cupful of sugar and set in ice chest. Just before serving pour over it one-half cupful of chilled fruit juice.

Chop Suey.

One-half pound of ground beef cooked with six onions for fifteen minutes in one quart of water, then add one-half package of spaghetti and one-fourth cupful of rice. The spaghetti and rice should be cooked until tender, then add a pint of tomatoes.

Selection of Potatoes For Table Purposes

In purchasing potatoes for table purposes the following points should be kept in mind: First, that smooth potatoes are more desirable than rough ones because they are more easily prepared and less loss is involved in the paring; second, that tubers which have been exposed to light for any considerable period soon acquire a more or less acid taste; third, that very large potatoes are not especially desirable partly on account of the greater length of time required to cook them uniformly and partly because they are often very variable in texture; fourth, a good potato should be firm and crisp when cut, and a thin cross section when held between the eye and the light should show a relatively uniform distribution of starch throughout its whole area as opposed to a large translucent, watery central area, which denotes a lack of starch in this portion of the tuber. The even distribution of starch insures greater uniformity in cooking and in texture of the flesh when cooked.

If a lot is not uniform it is often worth while to sort them and use the large ones with roast meats or at other times when the oven need not be especially heated and save the small ones for occasions when quick cooking is more convenient. When the potatoes are very large or time is pressing it is often desirable to increase the surface exposed to the heat by cutting them in pieces before cooking in spite of the fact that this slightly increases the amount of nutrients lost.

Sleepy Time Story About a Very Interesting Creature.

HOW A BIRD LIVES IN WINTER.

Little Feathered Cold-Weather Resident of the Woods Stores Up Food For Hard Times—How Its Nest Is Safeguarded Against Attack.

Well, said Uncle Ben to Little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about the TREE MOUSE.

No doubt you think you can do wonders since you've learned to turn hand-springs, Master Ned, but there's a little white breasted bird that hops about on our trees every morning that can give you or any little boy I know of points in exercising.

The name of the bird? Well, some people call him a tree mouse, and others call him a nuthatch. He is part bluish gray; part black and part white. He does not look much like a mouse to me, but the way he can run up and down the limbs of trees, hanging now to the underside or running along head downward, makes one think of a fly.

The little nuthatch is one of our winter birds, for he does not leave us when cold weather comes, as so many of our birds do.

You see, his food can be picked up nearly all the year round. He is one of those birds that get the worms from under the bark, and grubs and insect eggs are delicious morsels to him.

The little nuthatch is a thrifty bird. Like the squirrel in the fall, he lays away a store of food for hard times. When cold weather comes he goes to the tree in a crack of which he may have stuck the little nuts of which he is so fond and draws out a nut. Beechnuts are favorites. He can crack the shells of these with his long, sharp bill in a short time. Then, coking his little head on one side, he bolts the nut meat with the greatest enjoyment.

Put some kernels of dried corn out for him on a feeding board or some cracked hickory nuts and see how pleased the nuthatch will be.

This lively little bird likes hazelnuts, chestnuts, sunflower seeds and grains. In the winter one sees him in the company of the chickadees, the juncos, buntings and winter wrens, the downy woodpecker and the winter sparrows.

In spring these nuthatches build nests in the hollows of trees. Perhaps they fear the red squirrels, the snakes or the mice in the neighborhood. At any rate, they gather pitch and sticky balsams from the trees and smear it about the outside of the holes in which they make their nests and lay their eggs.

Often when the nuthatches are in a hurry they forget about this sticky doormat and go flitting carelessly over it so that it catches on their own tails, and before they can get loose they have to wrench out some of their feathers.

Just the same, the little nuthatch is one of the nimblest little creatures you will ever see and is well worth watching.

The New Paint Box.

Little artist, here is an idea for you. Isn't it troublesome to keep brushes clean when you have to color the little girl's dress blue, her hair brown and her shoes black? Make yourself a blotting ball out of crushed blotters sewed up in a piece of cheesecloth. When your brush is touched on this ball the color is quickly absorbed, and it is clean for the next shade.

Fun on the Ice.

Now is the season for the lovers of winter sports, which include all boys and girls and a goodly percentage of grown folks. One of the most healthful of outdoor exercises is that of skating.

and it is highly enjoyable. Happy lads and lasses through the ponds and feel the thrill of gliding over the smooth ice. Skating promotes grace of movement, as nearly every muscle is brought into play. Care should be taken, however, not to exercise until exhaustion comes, because that takes away all the good of the sport.

ABOUT YOUR RUGS

A Short History of Their Early Origins and Kinds.

RAG ONES ARE AMERICAN.

A Word About the Two Methods Which Give Woven and Tufted Carpetings. Before You Buy Prime Yourself About the Different Kinds.

Most rugs are made according to one of two methods, which gives us woven and tufted carpetings. The latter is distinctly oriental and is made upon a foundation warp composed of hempen, woolen or silk threads. The number of these threads depends upon the breadth of the rug and its desired fineness or coarseness. Lengths of colored wool or the hair of a camel or goat or silken threads are knotted on to the warp threads, with the two ends of the individual twists standing up. What is called a weft thread is then run across the warp and another line of tufts made. The whole is brought securely together by means of a hand instrument, the ends of the tufts clipped to an equal length by expert fingers, and thus a tufted rug is completed.

Writing in 1632, Pierre Dupont, a master carpet maker of Paris, said he was convinced that rug weaving was taught to the French by the Saracens after the latter had suffered defeat at the hands of Charles Martel in 726. The middle ages found the art flourishing all over Europe and especially in France and Flanders. Colbert, minister of Louis XIV., who did so much to aid the birth of industrial France, established the Hotel des Gobelins in 1667 as a state manufactory, and the enterprise grew to be one of the notable institutions of the realm.

In 1701 William III. of England granted royal charters to weavers in Wilton and Axminster, towns which were to give their names to types of carpeting that have come down to the present day. The fame of the Wilton rug was largely due to Henry, earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, who brought two Frenchmen, Antoine Dufosse and Pierre Jemalle, to England and put them in charge of operations at Wilton. Their skill and enterprise won fame for the establishment in a little while. Other French and Flemish weavers followed, and the industry was fairly launched.

The opening of the nineteenth century saw much experimentation in the effort to produce a satisfactory machine made carpeting. Erastus B. Bigelow, an American, and William Wood, an Englishman, perfected the Jacquard loom to a point where it could be depended upon to turn out a uniform product of good quality. The passing years have witnessed further important development, and results are now accomplished by mechanical process that will stand the test of comparison with the hand made article.

Not until 1880 did the French turn to machinery for carpet weaving, and they at first adopted English machinery to a great extent. So it was that the art first crossed the channel and then came back in a different form after the lapse of centuries.

In America we have produced at least one kind of floor covering which we may claim as our own—the rag rug. In colonial times rag rugs were made in considerable numbers, and it was deemed a fine accomplishment for a woman. Much ingenuity was shown in the matching of colors.

TOO GREAT A RISK.

Washington's Pensioner Dreaded the Matrimonial Yoke.

One of the recipients of Washington's bounty was his old neighbor, Captain John Posey. Posey sold Washington not only his ferry farm, but also his claim to western lands. He became financially embarrassed—in fact, ruined; his family were scattered, and he made frequent applications to Washington for advice and assistance. Washington helped to educate a son, St. Lawrence, who had been reduced to the hard expedient of tending bar in a tavern, and he also kept a daughter, Milly, at Mount Vernon as a sort of companion to Mrs. Washington. The captain once wrote the following delightful letter, which is quoted by Paul Leland Haworth in "George Washington, Farmer":

"I could (have) been able to (have) satisfied all my old arrears, some months ago, by marrying (an) old widow woman in this County. She has large sums of cash by her and Pritty good Est.—She is as thick as she is high—And gets drunk at least three or four (times) a week—which is disagreeable to me—has Villant Spirit when Drunk—its been (a) great Dispute in my mind what to Doe—I leave I shud run all Risks—if my Last wife, had been (an) Even tempered woman, but her Spirit, has Given me such (a) Shock—that I am afraid to Run the Risk again."

Evidently the captain did not find a way out of his troubles by the matrimonial route, for somewhat later he was in jail at Queenstown, presumably for debt, and we find in one of Washington's case memorandum books under date of Oct. 15, 1773, "By Charity—given Capt. Posey, four pounds." One of the sons later settled in Indiana, and Posey county is named after him.

GIANT WOLVES OF THE SEA.

Savage Killer Whales Swim in Ranks, Like Trained Soldiers.

The killer whale usually travels and hunts in "schools" or packs of from three to a dozen or more individuals. Unlike most whales, the members of these schools do not travel in a straggling party, but swim side by side, their movements as regularly timed as those of soldiers. A regularly spaced row of advancing long black fins swiftly cutting the undulating surface of the sea produces a singularly sinister effect. The evil impression is well justified, since killers are the most savage and remorseless of whales. The jaws are armed with rows of effective teeth, with which the animals attack and devour seals and porpoises and even destroy some of the larger whales.

Killers are like giant wolves of the sea, and their ferocity strikes terror to other warm blooded inhabitants of the deep. The Eskimos of the Alaskan coast of Bering sea consider killers as actual wolves in sea form. They believe that in the early days, when the world was young and men and animals could change their form at will, land wolves often went to the edge of the shore ice and changed to killer whales, and the killers returned to the edge of the ice and came out as wolves, to go ravaging over the land. Some of the natives assure one that even today certain wolves and killers are still endowed with this power and on account of their malignant character are much feared by hunters.

Killers are known to swallow small seals and porpoises entire and attack large whales by tearing away their fleshy lips and tongues. When attacking large prey they work in packs, with all the unity and fierceness of so many wolves. —National Geographic Magazine.

The Inconsiderate Mice.

A more kind hearted and ingenious soul never lived than Aunt Betsey, but she was a poor housekeeper. On one occasion a neighbor who had run in for a "back door" call was horrified to see a mouse run across Aunt Betsey's kitchen floor. "Why on earth don't you set a trap, Betsey?" she asked. "Well," replied Aunt Betsey, "I did have a trap set. But land, it was such a fuss! Those mice kept getting into it!"—Youth's Companion.

Monster Anchors.

The old style anchor—except as the pictured symbol of hope—is fast passing away. The modern anchor is made of steel rather than of wrought iron, has no "stock," has ball and socket joints and fits closely against the side of the ship when stowed. Those for our largest warships weigh 20,000 pounds apiece.

Butternut Dye.

Butternut (Juglans cinerea) was formerly a valuable dye material. It usually is colored brown, but the shades could be varied. The "Confederate jeans," the cloth much used for uniforms in Tennessee and Kentucky during the war between the states, was dyed with the bark of this tree.

Worth Knowing

If a teaspoonful of lemon juice is added to boiling rice it will not only whiten the grains, but will give them a more pleasant flavor.

If the color has been taken out of silk by fruit stains a little ammonia will usually restore it.

To keep nickel and silver ornaments bright rub them with a woollen cloth saturated with spirits of ammonia.

After having the hands in soapsuds wash them in vinegar to make them soft and white and prevent their chapping.

A few drops of ammonia in a cupful of warm water, applied carefully, will remove spots from paintings and chromos.

Keep odd buttons in a wide mouthed bottle such as candy comes in; then when a button is needed you can see at a glance if the one required is there. Keeping the white and dark buttons separated is the best plan, and the bottle is an improvement over the old time button bag.

The best way to work buttonholes, especially large ones for coats and other garments, is to mark the position and then put two rows of machine stitching around it. Afterward cut between the two stitchings, and the hole will be found much easier to work, as this prevents all fraying of the material.

Fumigation Not Best Means of Disinfecting

Fumigation as an effective means of killing bacteria has about lost caste among public health workers for the reason that people can't be fumigated. It is now known that people more than things are carriers of infection. Disinfection by fumigation, says the North Carolina state board of health, belongs to a bygone age in sanitary science. Because formaldehyde fumes will kill cultures of bacteria when exposed to it, it was naturally inferred that fumigation was the logical method of all disinfection. But careful observation and tests have proved that diseases are not spread so much by inanimate objects as they are by human beings. Diphtheria, measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, cerebrospinal meningitis and probably infantile paralysis are all spread through the discharges, mainly the mouth and nose secretions, of people having the disease.

The best disinfection is soap and water, sunlight and fresh air applied faithfully during the course of the disease. To sterilize all discharges, burn mouth and nose secretions and maintain strict personal cleanliness in case of sickness reduce the need for any other disinfection of any kind.

When people learn that no ill smelling fumes or any other mode of terminal disinfection can take the place of soap, water and fresh air and daily personal cleanliness, sanitary science will have made a great gain. No manner of disinfection at the end of illness can atone for careless, wholesale filth during the course of illness.

Light as Chaff

A Trade Trick.

A north country farmer on a visit to London entered a photographer's to have his picture taken. The photographer had a handsome shop, and he put the farmer in a chair, peered through the camera and then, coming from under his black cloth, said:

"By the way, will you have a drink?"

"Why, I don't mind," said the farmer, with a pleased smile.

"What have you got?"

"Oh, anything you wish," said the photographer.

"I'll take"—the farmer began, but just then the other motioned him to be silent, inserted a plate holder and took the picture.

After the operation was over the photographer handed the farmer his hat and started to escort him to the door. Had he forgotten about the drink?

To remind him the farmer said:

"But what about that little invitation?"

"Oh," said the photographer, smiling, "that is just a trade ruse of mine to give an interested and pleased expression to the face."

Truly Veracious.

Mrs. Jones had a new maid, who appeared at the door of the library one afternoon, where her mistress was reading.

"There is no coal, mum," said the domestic. "an' the fires are goin' out."

"No coal!" cried the mistress in surprise. "Why didn't you tell me before?"

"I couldn't tell you there was no coal, mum," replied the girl, "when there was coal."

Gave Her Away.

"Did the father give the bride away?"

"I should say he did. He got rattled. And what do you think he said as he handed her over to the bridegroom? 'It's more blessed to give than to receive.'"—Cleveland Leader.

SHE JUST GETS IT.

When a Woman Makes Up Her Mind That She Wants a Thing.

The main difference between men and women is nowhere so marked as it is in the distinction between character and ability.

A man's ability is entirely separate from his character. A man may have genius and no character at all. He may have small abilities and large character. In a man the two things appear to be entirely independent of one another.

But a woman's character is determined by her ability, and her ability is determined by her character. In reality, therefore, women are much more simple than men, although they do not appear to be so. Women are more complicated outwardly than men. They offer more superficial variety. But closer observation and association among them tend to make them more alike.

Men, on the other hand, grow more complicated as you come to know them better. This is because, their abilities and characters being unrelated and the proportionate measure of each subject to variations, new combinations are constantly being presented. The various things which go to make up the motive power of a woman, on the other hand, are more closely related. Women, therefore, concentrate more than men, although they do not seem to do so, the process being unconscious.

That explains why, if a woman wants a thing and a man doesn't want her to have it, she always gets it. When a man wants a thing he plans to get it just as much as he can through the orderly processes of his mind and will. When a woman wants a thing she makes no plan at all—but she gets it much more often than the man because everything in her whole make-up—conscious and unconscious—is working for it.

If you want to see conservation of energy and the perfection of efficiency watch the working of that perfectly co-ordinated machine—a woman—getting a thing from a man that she wants. A Corliss engine, in comparison, is a soap box on wheels.—T. L. M. in Life.

LINCOLN FORGAVE HIM.

One Man Who Got a Pardon Without Even Asking For It.

Among the innumerable nuisances and "cranks" who called on Lincoln at the White House were many who sought to win favor by showing that they had been the first to suggest his nomination as president. One of these men, says Francis F. Browne in "The Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln," was the editor of a weekly paper published in a little village in Missouri. He told the president that he was the man who first suggested Lincoln's name for the presidency and, pulling from his pocket an old, worn, defaced copy of his paper, exhibited to the president an item on the subject.

"Do you really think," said Lincoln, "that that was the cause of my nomination?"

"Certainly," said the editor. "The suggestion was so opportune that it was at once taken up by other papers, and you were nominated and elected."

"Ah, well," said Lincoln with a sigh. "I am glad to see you and to know that, but you will have to excuse me. I am just going to the war department to see Mr. Stanton."

"Well," said the editor, "I will walk over with you."

The president, with that good nature so characteristic of him, took up his hat and said, "Come along!"

When they reached the door of the secretary's office Mr. Lincoln turned to his companion and said, "I shall have to see Mr. Stanton alone, and you must excuse me." And then, taking him by the hand, he continued: "Goodbye. I hope you will feel perfectly easy about having nominated me; don't be troubled about it. I forgive you."

They Sink Backward.

Aquatic animals, as a rule, dive into the water head first and make more or less splashing. But the hippo sinks backward and goes down so quietly that if a hunter were standing near the edge of an African pool the big river horse would disappear without attracting attention. They keep up the custom in captivity, where there is no necessity of guarding against enemies. As they go down they throw up their noses and fill their lungs.

Peanuts in India.

The Indian peanut originally was grown as an edible nut, but the great importance of the crop in south India now is due entirely to the growth of the seed crushing industry both locally and abroad, and all efforts to improve the stock are with the view of increasing its oil yielding property.—Argonaut.

Navigating by Sound.

Steamboat captains use microphones installed in sounding leads to determine the character of river beds. The sound of the leads dragging on the bottom is transmitted by wire to regular telephone receivers.—New York Tribune.

And Got Called Too.

Needed It.

As soon as Adam awoke and saw Eve he coined the word "trouble."—Chicago Herald.

It is usually not so much the greatness of our trouble as the littleness of our spirit that makes us complain.

Master of the Cue

at 18.2 ball line. As the match was for only 250 points, his opponent had no chance to start, and Hoppe went out without a miss. Hoppe ran 622 from the spot at 18.2 ball line in a match in Paris some years ago. The contest was limited to 300 points, but in accordance with the option given by the French rules Hoppe kept on until he missed. Hoppe's record in a championship match is 308, made in the handicap tournament in New York. The picture shows Hoppe executing a masse shot.

Red Murray Comes Back.

John ("Red") Murray, for many years outfielder of the New York Giants, last season with the Toronto International league team, has signed a contract with the McGraw outfit for the coming season as an extra outfielder.

Passing of Lajoie.

Larry Lajoie, whose contract with the Philadelphia Athletics expired Jan. 1, has agreed on terms to manage the Toronto club the coming season. Lajoie thus passes out of the major leagues after twenty years of active service.

Rules For Caring For Poultry In Winter

To successfully winter poultry there are a number of points in their care that should be watched closely. Ross M. Sherwood of the Kansas Agricultural college poultry department mentions the following rules as those that should be given special attention during the winter season:

Watering pans should be emptied at night to prevent freezing.

A slight increase in egg production may be obtained by feeding the chickens a warm mash once daily, but care must be taken not to have the feed too hot.

Either keep the birds in the house all the time or let them have free range. Letting them out one week and then keeping them in one week is sure to cut down the egg yield.

Green feed stimulates digestion and gives egg yolks a richer color. Poultry houses should be free from drafts and dampness.

Fresh air and sunshine are two of the best disinfectants.

Dropping boards should be cleaned at least once a week.

Litter on the floor should be removed as soon as it becomes damp.

For the best egg yields do not neglect the protein feeds, such as buttermilk and meat scrap.

Silage is a cheap form of succulence or green feed.

THE PILGRIM SPIRIT.

The pilgrim spirit has not fled; It walks in noon's broad light. And it watches the bed of the glorious dead With the holy stars by night; It watches the bed of the brave who have bled And still guard this icebound shore Till the waves of the bay where the Mayflower lay Shall foam and freeze no more. —John Pierpont.

AN ALIBI FOR GILDER.

His Joy When He Found It Was Not He Who Snubbed Stevenson.

A story was circulated at one time that when Robert Louis Stevenson first came to America he went to the office of the Century (then Scribner's) and was not cordially received. In 1887 Richard Watson Gilder wrote to Talcott Williams a letter in which he gave his idea of the occurrence:

"I have no doubt that Stevenson used the expression 'fired out' with reference to his experience in our old office. That is the term he and I used in talking the thing over the other evening. I had three delightful visits in his room by his invitation—two of them very long visits—and that among other things was freely discussed. I remember asking him who it was that 'fired him out.' (In point of fact, of course, nobody fired him out.) He looked at me with a quizzical expression and said: 'I don't know but it was you. Yes,' he said. 'I think it was you, now that I look at you.'"

"I said, 'Oh, pshaw, now! Dr. Holland was a large likeness of me; it might have been he.'"

"No," he said. "I think it was you." "Well," I said, "see here, now, when was this?"

"He said it was in July. 'I said, 'It might have been I if it was in July, but of what year?'"

"1879."

"Hurrah," said I, "that lets me out." And I jumped up with great delight, for, as you know, I was in Europe from March, 1879, to June, 1880. Between you and me and the lampost I have no doubt I would have made the same answer to him as was made—whatever that answer was.

"He brought no manuscript and simply wanted to write for the magazine. He doesn't seem to remember the words of the conversation. For all that is known, he may have been asked to submit something, although he doesn't say so. Of course, any answer to such a vague and uninitiated application would have to be of the vaguest. He said he was rather surprised at getting in, even, as he had no letter of introduction."

Later Mr. Gilder wrote to another friend:

"Never mind! Mrs. Stevenson tells me that if I had seen Louis I would have turned him out. She says he looked the part, and every one did turn him out! Was it a dig or a compliment when she said likewise that I reminded her of him?"—Letters of Richard Watson Gilder.

Power of the President.

In time of war the president of the United States is actually a dictator. There is nothing theoretical about his place or his powers. He is commander in chief of the army and navy. The members of his cabinet are responsible to him personally, not to congress. None of them may be removed without his consent except by impeachment. Moreover, he can suspend the writ of habeas corpus and perform all the other functions of a dictator except order grants of money. That is the only real check upon his powers, and it is a check that can be exercised only at the peril of the nation.—New York World.

The Sailors' Psalm.

How many people—landmen, at all events—are aware that one of the Psalms is often called the sailors' psalm?

It is, of course, Psalm cvii, wherein occur the beautiful and familiar words, "They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters—these see the works of the Lord and his wonders in the deep."

The psalm is usually read as part of the simple services which take place on Sundays on ships at sea. For that reason it is known as the sailors' psalm.—London Chronicle.

Driving Screws Into Plaster.

When screws are driven into a plaster wall they may be made firm enough to hold considerable weight if they be withdrawn, wrapped with cotton string and dipped into plaster of paris until sufficient adheres to fill the hole in the wall and to permit some of it to be forced behind the plaster. This latter forms a plug that holds the screw firm.

Short Amendments.

The shortest amendment to the United States constitution is the eighth, containing but sixteen words, as follows: "Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted." The sixteenth or income tax amendment is set down in but thirty words.

Making Assurance Doubly Sure.

The pupils in a certain class in hygiene were told to set down on paper the reasons why in their opinion cremation was superior to burial. "Cremation is good," wrote one little boy, "because the person might only be in a swoon, and if he is burned he cannot recover."—New York Times.

Gave Him a Pointer.

"I'd like to see Mr. Jones," said the lady caller.

"Mr. Jones is engaged, ma'am," replied the new office boy.

"Engaged, fiddlesticks!" exclaimed the lady. "He's married, and I'm his wife."—Indianapolis Star.

—The Arlington High school hockey team will play against the Somerville High team in the Boston Arena, next Monday night, and on Friday night the Melrose High school.

—The heavy fall of snow last Monday will cost the town a large sum. As soon as the snow was plowed away the wind blew it back and a second trip was made necessary in many sections.

—Representative Jacob Bitzer was with the legislative party that narrowly escaped being killed by the overturning of a touring car, as reported in Boston papers. A small tree only prevented the car from falling on Mr. Bitzer where he had fallen when thrown into the snow.

—The Woman's Missionary and Social Union of the First Baptist church will hold its regular meeting in the church parlor on Monday, Feb. 12th, at 3 p. m. The program will be based on the last two chapters of the study book, "World Missions and World Peace." All women are cordially invited.

—The next lecture by Mr. R. F. Arrington upon "Americanization and Current Events," will be given next Wednesday evening, in Adelphi Hall. Subject, "The Immigrant in Industry." The course of four lectures is being given under the auspices of the Arlington Equal Suffrage Ass'n and are free to all interested.

—The police department wish to warn the public to be more careful about locking their doors and windows. The storekeepers are especially careless in this respect and keep the police busy nailing up doors and windows nearly every night. That no serious robbery has taken place is due, no doubt, to the carefulness of the police in trying the doors.

—On Tuesday afternoon, about four o'clock, the home of Wm. A. Forbes, on 108 Jason street, was entered by a burglar. The maid, who had been in the yard, probably frightened away the intruder when she entered the back door. Officer Belyea, who was sent to investigate the case, found that entrance had been gained by prying off a chain lock on the front door. Nothing seemed to have been taken.

—The bowling teams of Bethel Lodge of this town and Middlesex Lodge of Malden, broke even in the Middlesex County League series Monday night on the Arlington alleys. On the second string the rollers tied, and it was agreed that the winner of the third string should take the second also, and this saved Bethel Lodge. Crook of the Middlesex team got the high individual score with 111, and Lewis of the same team got the high three-string total with 301.

—Miss Theresa Mary Catherine Flynn, daughter of David Flynn of 34 Warren street, and John J. Kennedy, son of Thomas Kennedy of 22 Henderson street, were married Sunday evening, at the parochial residence of St. Agnes' church, Rev. Joseph L. Early performing the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Katherine E. Flynn, and Thomas M. Kennedy, brother of the groom, was best man. The reception was confined to the immediate families only. The bride wore a dress of brown broadcloth trimmed with fox fur, and her white satin hat was trimmed with gold lace. The maid of honor wore blue broadcloth and a white hat.

—A recital by the pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Ellen, with a short illustrated lecture on Mozart, was given last Monday evening in Faelten Hall, Huntington Chambers, Boston. Various selections were given by the following:—Misses Dorothea Alexander, Alice Berman, Evelyn Quimby, Frances Linnell, Helen Ferguson, Marjorie Inkham, Blossom Earl, Lillie Wilson, Florence Steele, Caroline Gordon, Elizabeth Ashton, Louise Eichel Louise Schell, Mildred Linnell, Mrs. Ellis Alexander, Frank Needham, Austin Quimby, Belvin Williston and Edward Fox. Mr. Ellen gave a "Study for left hand alone," from Lechitzky, which was especially well rendered.

—The morning service at the First Parish (Unitarian) church on Sunday, will be National and Patriotic. Mr. Gill had already announced as his sermon topic "The Soul of the United States." In his anniversary sermon on last Sunday, Mr. Gill suggested several things in the future of the church, among others being the purchasing of the United States flag and one of the Commonwealth. At the reception held Tuesday evening, it was announced that the money had been raised and that Sunday, Past-Dept. Commander, Alfred H. Knowles, with some of his G. A. R. comrades, would be at the morning service to unfurl the National colors, which would be a part of the morning service. The public is cordially invited to attend.

—The annual meeting of the Baptist church was held in the chapel of the church Thursday, Feb. 1st, with Rev. Nathan E. Wood, the pastor, presiding. Eleven organizations reported and marked improvements in all branches were noted. The church is now enjoying its largest membership with five hundred and thirty members in the church, six hundred and thirty in the Sunday school and one hundred and forty-seven members of the Philanthropic club. There was an increase of twenty-six per cent in the church benevolences. The Christian Endeavor Society showed an increase of fifty per cent in membership. Deacon F. A. Johnson was unanimously re-elected for another term of seven years. The church calendar of Sunday had the following pleasant word of Mr. Johnson:—"Deacon Johnson has already served the church as deacon for fifteen years, and no deacon living has been more faithful than he."

—Several things are on the bulletin boards reminding citizens of the near approach of the annual election. Among others is the notice that the Selectmen, at their meeting next Monday (Feb. 12) evening, will draw the warrant "for the Town Meeting to be held March 5." Citizens having special articles to present for action may file at this time, if signed by at least ten legal voters.

—The Cabaret given by the Arlington High school seniors lost nothing of interest in being repeated, which it was on Friday evening, Feb. 2nd, in the Assembly Hall of High school building for the benefit of the Athletic Association. The hall was well filled with parents and friends of the school. The program as given in these columns last week was repeated. In addition there was a song in costume, cleverly executed by Miss Helen Kerner, who responded to an encore and made a great hit. Evelyn Lake and Josephine Stearns sang one of the popular songs in duet and Julia Currier, in Japanese costume and Stanley Kellogg, in American evening clothes, gave the song "Poor Butterfly" that was much enjoyed. A goodly sum was realized.

—The Universalist parish has been divided into four groups, including every family on the pastor's calling list, or known to be interested in any way in the Universalist church. Each group has a leader: At the east end, Mrs. Frank Hills; at the center, Mrs. Francis B. Wade; south of the center, Mrs. W. A. Brooks, Jr.; at the Heights, Mrs. James F. Yonnie. Each group is to do something definite for the church, to increase the attendance upon the services, to develop the social life, and everything else that the members may wish. The center group is to serve a supper on Tuesday evening, to which all people are invited. It will be followed by an entertainment and social.

—The Sowers Lend-a-Hand gave what it termed the "February number of La Vivant" in the vestry of the First Parish (Unitarian) church, Wednesday afternoon. Members of the club assisted in presenting the issue by appearing in a series of pictures, supposed to be seen in the edition and were a replica of any of the well known magazines from the story to the advertisements. It furnished a pleasant means of entertainment and the revenue, from the silver offering of those who attended was most satisfactory. The magazine entailed a great deal of time and labor in its production, and this was accomplished through the efficiency of the president, Mrs. Roscoe Perry, who was assisted by Mesdames Guy E. Sanger, John H. Sanger, W. D. Clark, Jr., Robert H. B. Gien. The candy sold was in charge of Mrs. W. D. Elwell. Tea was served at the close of the afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. Harold A. Yeames.

—The storm tearing down on eastern Mass. on Monday forenoon was as severe in Arlington as elsewhere. For half an hour or more artificial light was required in all offices, autos and street cars turned on lights and the din of tooting of horns and clanging of bells were added to screaming wind and rolling thunder. It surely was some storm, much fiercer to look out on from the safe vantage of an office window than to be out in. Happily it was of a short duration and the activities of snow plows on the electric lines kept the coast clear, so there was no serious interruption to travel. It was a queer as well as severe storm. At noon the sun was shining. An hour later the air was so thick with snow that buildings on opposite side of Mass. avenue were only dimly seen, while the wind whirled the snow in a forty-mile rush. Before eight o'clock in the evening a moon was shining in a clear sky.

—The following was clipped from the Boston Globe of a recent date and will be of interest to our high school friends:—

"Arlington High school, which has always been noted for its hockey team, has no doubt as well as the material this winter warranted or it would probably be in first place in the Interscholastic League. It is the general opinion among hockey followers that Arlington High has the best four players on any one league team in its forward line, and its defense, outside of O'Connell, an inexperienced forward, is very formidable. One reason for Arlington's inability to win over Newton High, the only team that has defeated it, was that its forwards failed to display any team work, probably due to lack of coaching. Bill Barry, the goal-tender of last winter, recently volunteered his services, and since then the team has improved rapidly. Capt. Louis Roycroft, the center, is one of the best schoolboy players in the league and his clean style of play has won him many friends among the followers and members of other league teams. Nelson Jock can play a high-grade game at rover, although he has had a tendency at times to do a little too much slashing and hooking. He is one of the fastest members of the forward line and has a good eye for the cage. To be honest, Story Morton has covered himself with glory many times by his good playing, but has a tendency to leave his position too frequently. James Donnelly, the point, was captain last fall, but could not play in many of the important games. He has been in good standing all this winter and is playing the best game of his career."

—It was announced in these columns, in our last week's issue, that on Sunday a series of evening services would commence at the Pleasant Street Congregational church, to extend until Easter. This notice was supplemented with a circular sent out by Rev. S. C. Bushnell and he and officers of the church planning this new departure must have been highly gratified at the response to the invitation to attend, for the audience numbered more than the average on a pleasant day. The service was conducted in the usual form, but interspersed in the opening numbers were hymns from the Sunday Tabernacle book, led by Mrs. H. W. Reed, from her place in the singers' gallery. Mrs. Reed also gave a sympathetic rendering of "On Calvary," when the hush in the audience was the highest compliment one could receive. Mr. Bushnell took the Bible as his theme and showed in a clear, helpful way, how each reader may and ought to find a "Bible within the Bible" that would meet the deepest wants of his soul. It is The Book above all books; it has the truth regarding God and His Son, although compiled by human hands centuries after events recorded had occurred. There will be another meeting on Sunday evening, Feb. 11, at 7.30, when Mr. Bushnell will devote his time in the program to discussing a theme akin to that presented last Sunday. In a sense we should say Dr. Swain's mantle has fallen on Mr. Bushnell's shoulders.

St. Agnes' Parish Reunion.

The reunion of the members of St. Agnes' parish was held in Town Hall, Thursday evening and was a great success in every way. A fine audience representing the different Catholic societies of the town were present and the evening was a notable one. It was in charge of Rev. Joseph E. Early and Rev. John J. Flynn, who had a large and efficient committee to assist in the details. Rev. Matthew J. Flaherty and a delegation from Knights of Columbus escorted ex-Gov. Walsh to the hall.

The reunion was honored by the presence of ex-Gov. David I. Walsh, who delivered a stirring address on loyalty to country. A former proclamation of Gov. Walsh was read, followed by the unfurling of the American flag, the entire audience joining in the singing of "Star Spangled Banner," led by the orchestra. The formal exercises were followed by a dance. O'Neil's orchestra furnished the music and Hardy catered.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

By-laws Relating to Hawkers and Peddlers.

The following by-laws relating to hawkers and peddlers in the Town of Arlington were accepted and adopted at the Town Meeting held December 7th, 1916, and the same have been approved by the Attorney General of the Commonwealth.

Section 1. No person shall go from place to place in this Town selling or bartering, or carrying or expending for sale or barter, any fruit, vegetables, or fish without a license therefor from the Board of Selectmen; provided, however, that this section shall not apply to any person who sells only fruits or vegetables raised or produced by himself or his family, or fish which is obtained by his own labor or the labor of his family.

Section 2. The Board of Selectmen shall have authority to grant such license to any person of good repute for moral and integrity who is, or has declared his intention to become, a citizen of the United States. Said licenses, unless sooner revoked by the Board of Selectmen, shall expire one year after the granting thereof, and each person so licensed shall pay therefor a fee of one dollar.

Section 3. No hawker or peddler shall sell, offer or expose for sale, any of the articles enumerated in Section 15 of Chapter 240B of the Revised Laws of the Commonwealth, without a badge of addition thereto, until he has recorded his name and residence with the Board of Selectmen. Every person licensed under the provisions of the preceding section as a hawker or peddler of fruits, vegetables, or fish shall record his name and residence in like manner with the Board of Selectmen.

Section 4. No person hawking, peddling, or carrying articles enumerated in Section 15 of the Revised Laws of the Commonwealth, shall cry his wares to the disturbance of the peace and comfort of the inhabitants of the Town, nor otherwise than in vehicles or receptacles which are clean and neat and not offensive to the senses.

Section 5. Every hawker and peddler licensed by the Board of Selectmen shall be assigned a number and shall be provided with a badge which shall be conspicuously worn by him; and every other such hawker and peddler as described in the preceding section shall be provided with a badge of such type and design as may be approved by said Board of Selectmen which he shall wear in like manner. Whoever neglects to wear, or wears such badge without authority, shall be punished by the penalty provided in Section 10 of this by-law.

Section 6. Every vehicle or other receptacle used by a licensee as a conveyance for articles enumerated in Section 15 of these By-Laws, shall be attached thereto on each side a number plate, to be furnished by the Town with his license.

Section 7. No person shall be registered or assigned a badge or number plate under the provisions of Sections 5 and 6 of these By-Laws, until he presents a certificate from the Sealer of Weights and Measures stating that all weighing and measuring devices intended to be used by such person have been duly inspected and found as required by law. The use of, or possession by such person with intent to use, any false or unsealed weighing or measuring devices shall be deemed a violation of this section.

Section 8. Nothing in these By-Laws shall be construed as conflicting with any license issued under the authority of the Commonwealth.

Section 9. Any licensee granted under these By-Laws or any By-Law amendatory or additional thereto, may be revoked by the Board of Selectmen.

Section 10. Whoever violates any provision of these By-Laws shall be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.
